

Your Walk creates hope and builds flourishing communities

You are walking with Alodia González, who lives in a rural part of Paraguay.

Like others in her area, Alodia struggled to provide for her family and needed help creating a stable income. Everything changed after she participated in a CWS-sponsored training focused on planting seeds and food production. Alodia learned about beekeeping and how to make honey, she also led the production process of her community's garden.

"With a good production of honey, we are generating significant income to support our families," Alodia shared. "With the garden, we are able to eat lettuce, parsley and other vegetables produced by us," she said.

Because you Walk, you are giving Alodia González and others hope for a better future and the knowledge and tools needed to change the present.
